Bruno Lacroix
Chairman, ALDES Group

In 1967, Bruno Lacroix entered a small family business employing 60 people, whose activity then was die-cutting and stamping as a subcontractor.

Seizing the opportunity of a new regulation concerning ventilation in France, he created a new activity to address the needs of air renewal in homes, thus avoiding problems of condensation, by evacuating humidity and odors: Continuous Mechanical Extract Ventilation (CMEV).

This activity would then be progressively completed by a market offer for ventilation in commercial buildings (offices, hotels, hospitals, schools, and universities, etc.) as well as fire protection equipment, sound attenuation or centralized vacuum cleaning systems.

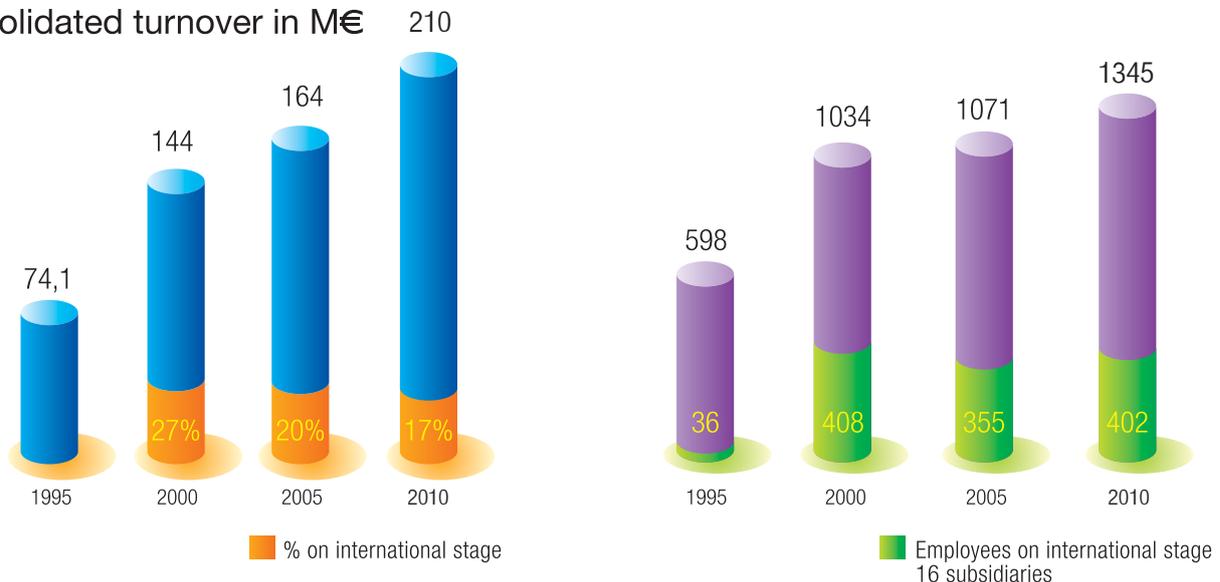

The ventilation activity progressively became the company's core business, which then went on to abandon its original trade of subcontracting.

Aldes Group has become the French leader in ventilation equipment by holding half of the market, thanks to its technological differentiation and its quality of service. The company tends to be equally recognized on a European scale, where it has set up subsidiaries in Germany, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Spain and Portugal; many other countries being covered by distributors, whilst waiting for the setting up of new subsidiaries. On a wider international scale, subsidiaries have been created in China, United Arab Emirates, Reunion Island and USA. Production factories are located in: France, Belgium, Reunion Island, U.A.E. and China. The Group has an annual turnover of 210 Million Euro, with a steady progress of 10% per year, with more than 1340 employees worldwide.
